DOWN BY THE RIVER

The transformation of the former EWEB industrial site into a vibrant new park and neighborhood has started!

Building demolition this spring was the first step toward redevelopment of Eugene's Downtown Riverfront, which will fulfill the community's vision of reconnecting the City's downtown to the Willamette River.

The Downtown Riverfront Park is just one of the many projects to come out of the 2018 bond and levy. Your vote is already hard at work with several other park developments, facility renovations, and increased maintenance and safety measures throughout Eugene.

LETTER FROM THE DIRECTOR

Parks and Rec are on the move! With your support in May 2018, huge strides are now being made to improve parks and rec facilities. We heard you say this community deserves better and we're busy delivering on the projects described in the capital bond and operating levy you passed.

Your support has enabled us to make parks cleaner, greener, and safer! For over a decade, parks and recreation facilities had been in decline due to large and frequent budget cuts. Now we're renovating facilities, reopening restrooms, increasing safety patrols in parks and along paths, adding benches and lighting, planting street trees, sprucing up medians, restoring forests and wetlands, building better trails, developing new parks and restoring old ones. All this has begun in just a year.

This summer marks a significant milestone for the community as site preparations begin on the new Downtown Riverfront Park, across from Alton Baker Park. During the summer months you'll see grading throughout the site and riverbank restoration before the site is secured for winter. Construction will resume in spring and we hope to have a park grand opening by the summer of 2021. Great news for all!

Yes, we still have a long way to go to get your parks and rec facilities to the condition you want them to be in. But, in a short time we're seeing things start to turn around and have heard from many of you that you've noticed it too. I hope you'll read more about the exciting work we've been doing for you inside this edition of Picture Your Parks and visit our website to see what else we've got planned for the next few years to make your parks and rec facilities the best for Eugene to enjoy.

Respectfully,

Craig Carnagey
Parks and Open Space Director

MEDIANS ARE PARKLAND TOO

Eugene's 300 vegetated medians are cared for by the Green Infrastructure team in Parks and Open Space. This time of year, we are out mowing grass, weeding and keeping vegetation trimmed so it doesn't block your view of oncoming traffic. Vegetated medians are much more than just traffic calming devices. They help counteract concrete and asphalt heat islands, add character to our city and ease tension during traffic congestion. Think about how it would feel to bend down and weed a narrow strip of land between whooshing traffic in both directions. We won't kid you, it's nerve-wracking! But, the community pride from caring for these nooks and crannies of parkland is worth it. Next time you see our median team in their bright yellow safety gear, give them a friendly wave and let them know you appreciate their hard work.

BEE CITY USA

A Community Partnership to Protect Pollinators

Eugene is nearing its one-year anniversary of becoming a "Bee City USA," demonstrating our community's commitment to pollinators, native habitats and sustainability.

Pollinators like bumble bees, sweat bees, mason bees, honey bees, butterflies, moths, beetles, flies, hummingbirds and many others are responsible for the reproduction of 90 percent of the world's wild plant species and one in every three bites of food we consume. Eugene is fortunate to be home to many native pollinators, in addition to honey bees.

Eugene Parks and Open Space helps pollinators through a city-wide pledge to avoid neonicotinoid pesticides, following a thorough Integrated Pest Management (IPM) policy, operating a Pesticide Free Parks program, restoring and maintaining native prairies, woodlands, and riparian areas, operating a Native Plant Nursery, supporting partner groups working on pollinator-friendly plantings in parks, and participating in official Bee City events, outreach efforts and reporting.

The Eugene Pollinator Protection Committee, made up of Beyond Toxics, Glory Bee, Xerces Society, Eugene Parks and Open Space, Walama Restoration Project, Lane County Audubon, and UO Bee Campus collaborate on local Bee City activities. Learn what you can do at home to help pollinators at xerces.org/bringback-thepollinators

DOWNTOWN RIVERFRONT PARK

With thousands weighing in last year, a design concept emerged for the Downtown Riverfront Park that is fundamentally urban in character balanced by riverbank and habitat enhancements. Broad river views, new bicycle and pedestrian paths, seating and overlooks will highlight the park design. Integrated art pieces will in turn help tell the stories about the ecology, industry and community, past and present, creating a park experience that’s truly all about Eugene.

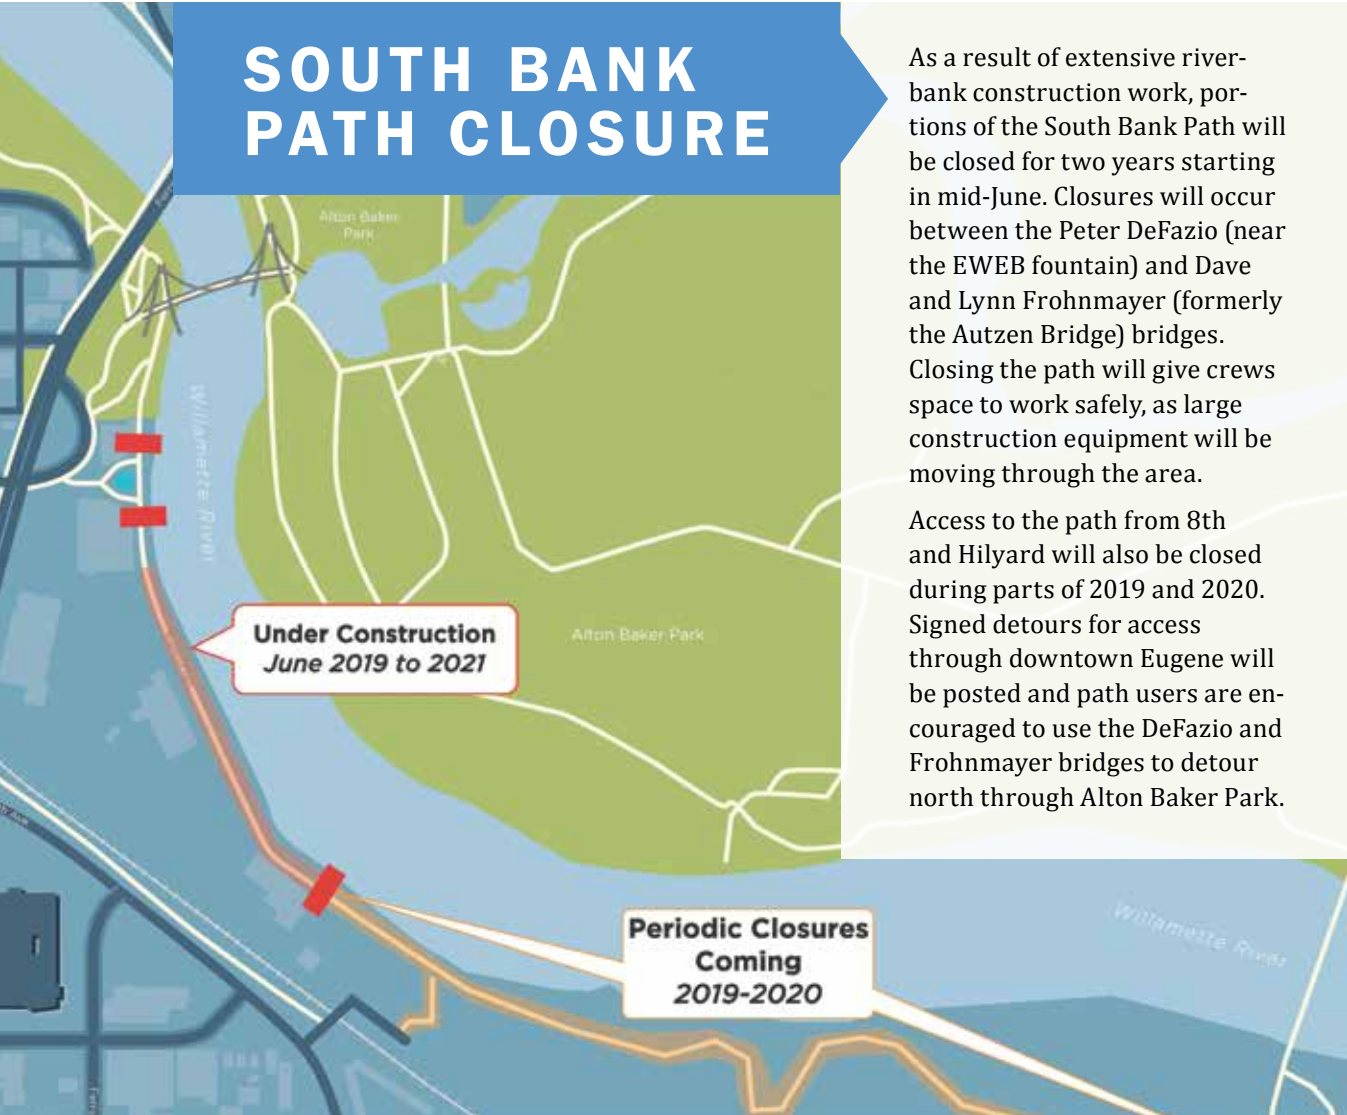

See more of the park design at eugene-or.gov/riverfrontpark.

The 3-acre riverfront park will open in 2021 and will be built over two construction seasons. This summer will see significant grading activity, including lessening the slope of the river’s steep bank, removal of non-native invasive plants and replanting of over 24,000 stakes, bulbs and shrubs along the riverbank.

This is important prep work for the second phase in the summer of 2020 when all the new park features including paths, furniture, new landscapes and overlooks will be built. Construction will be complete in the fall and the park should open to the public in the spring of 2021.

The adjacent 1-acre park plaza, to the west of the riverfront park, is scheduled for additional design work and construction to be completed after the opening of the park and in conjunction with building development in the new neighborhood.

- ✓ Continuing vegetation management to reduce fuel loads, manage weeds and add native plants

UP NEXT

General Maintenance and Operations Services for Future Assets

As new parks, community centers, pools, turf fields and natural areas are completed with bond funding over the next five years, funding from the levy will provide for their care.

The designs shown above are drafts, they do not represent the final concept design.

Transparency and Accountability

We want you to know how your dollars are being spent and stay up to date on the progress. In order to do this, an auditor will prepare an annual written report on the use of the bonds and provide a report to the Eugene City Council. Levy funds will have a separate budget and accounting (as per state law). A Citizen Advisory Board will also be convened and prepare a separate annual report for the Eugene City Council. These reports along with real time information on progress will be available at EUGparksandrec.org.

PROJECT ROUNDUP

Reintroducing Fire to the Landscape

In 2018, Rivers to Ridges partnership organizations burned a record number of sites and acres—25 sites and 702 acres, including more than 100 acres of City-owned property.

Using fire as a management tool improves the quality and resiliency of these habitats and reduces fuel loads. Many beautiful wetland plants like Camas and Cusick's checkermallow thrive in our wet prairie ecosystems and benefit from regular burning.

Careful coordination between our regional partners allow us to safely apply fire to natural areas that evolved with fire over thousands of years. You can visit sites like Meadowlark Prairie (pictured) to witness the bounty of blossoms resulting from these burns.

The Beat Drops at Amazon Park

Thanks to the Eugene Parks Foundation (EPF) for the tremendous fundraising efforts on its "Bring the Beat to Amazon" campaign, fun musical instruments have transformed our fully inclusive Amazon Park playground into a musical arena for kids of all ages and abilities.

Why is music so important? One in 20 children in the United States has some kind of disability, whether it's learning, mobility or developmental. For these children, sensory stimulation is key. There's no better place to grow than a playground. Spinning, swinging and climbing are sensory activities that were already available at Amazon, but now we've added the auditory experience. Drums, chimes and xylophones have created a stage where kids can shine in a solo or create their own band.

Learn more about the EPF at eugeneparksfoundation.org.

Western Pond Turtles Successfully Hatch

With a grant awarded to Eugene Parks and Oregon Department of Fish and Wildlife, we have been working hard to protect nests of Western pond turtles from predators and improve habitat for juvenile turtles. The hard work paid off when staff witnessed several turtles successfully hatch and make it down to the water.

Western pond turtles are being considered for listing as a federally threatened species. Though we have three natural area parks with remnant populations, Western pond turtles are in decline around the state and these may be the first juveniles in years to successfully hatch at this site. If they make it through these precarious early stages, Western pond turtles can live over 50 years in the wild.

In Full Swing at Hendricks Park

With funding from the Friends of Hendricks Park, visitors to the park can swing to new heights.

The swing set is inspired by the original, which hung between two Douglas fir trees. Unfortunately, both the trees and the swing set fell victim to the 2016 ice storm.

Parks Planning was able to pay homage to the unique design of the original swing that visitors to the park have loved for decades.

STAFF PICKS

We love parks! One thing our diverse staff has in common is a passion for the outdoors. Our work enables many of us to explore all of Eugene's 4,800-acre park system. Here are just a few of our favorite spots:

Moon Mountain Park is awesome for spring wildflowers and a unique view of Mt. Pisgah, the Laurel Hill Valley, and the Willamette Confluence. Access this park via the gate at the south end of Cascara Drive, walk 500 feet up the road and take the first gravel road spur to your right, then follow the old logging road up the hill to the summit.

– Jesse, Natural Area Operations

Creekside Park is a futuristic playground with a cool, ADA accessible sand play/encounter table.

– Josiah, Operations

My favorite Eugene Park is Golden Gardens. It is this magical place filled with native plants, animals, birds and reptiles!

– Ray, Park Ambassador

Hendricks Park's Native Plant Garden feels like walking into a secret garden, once you veer away from the main path (staying on trail of course).

– Christina, Eugene Outdoors Program

The tall trees are quiet and peaceful at Sladden Park.

– Amy, Admin

I love the river lookout spot that folks miss just past the Riverhouse on the Ruth Bascom Riverbank Path. It's an overlook that's overlooked.

– Melissa, Admin

COMMUNITY SPOTLIGHT: RIVERS TO RIDGES PARTNERSHIP

Fifteen years ago, the elected officials of City of Eugene, City of Springfield, and Willamalane Park and Recreation District endorsed a regional parks and open space vision called Rivers to Ridges. The goal was to create a comprehensive vision for the parks and open space system in the greater Eugene-Springfield area that could be implemented through collaboration among regional partners.

Rivers to Ridges describes a future where parks and natural areas are seamlessly connected throughout the Eugene-Springfield area, providing an abundance of recreational opportunities for people (such as hiking, biking, paddling and wildlife viewing) coupled with protection of outstanding wildlife habitat.

Since endorsement of Rivers to Ridges, it's grown to include 17 organizations that are actively working to make this vision a reality.
